PRESS RELEASE

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

POWERFUL LINEUP OF SEMINARS SLATED FOR 2013 NEBRASKA POWER FARMING SHOW

DES MOINES, IA – November 20, 2013: The power of knowledge and innovation will be cranked to full capacity at the 2013 Nebraska Power Farming Show. There are 14 free seminars scheduled to take place over the three days of the show, with experts slated to cover a range of topics that farmers should know about heading into 2014.

“The seminars help educate growers about industry and market trends, emerging opportunities and technologies, as well as challenges farmers face in transitioning their operation from one generation to the next,” said Tom Junge, show co-director. “Those who attend will receive powerful insights from some of the top minds in agriculture, so we encourage all show-goers to take advantage of these educational opportunities.”

It all starts Tuesday, December 10, with seminars such as “Saving the Family Farm,” “Defying Market Uncertainty” and “Are Conditions Favorable for Continued Drought Recovery Across the Corn Belt?”

The seminars continue on Wednesday with “Successful & Effective Transitions: What it Takes,” “Selecting the Right Tree for Your Farmstead” and a seminar from University of Nebraska Extension on the Farm Bill and Farm Programs for 2014.

Several of the presenters will repeat their seminars on Thursday, allowing attendees to catch some of the seminars they may have missed the first two days. This includes a seminar by University of Nebraska Extension on the Nebraska Tractor Testing Lab and Engine Emissions Update.

The Nebraska Power Farming Show, the second largest indoor farm show in the North America, runs from December 10-12, 2013, at the Lancaster Event Center in Lincoln.
